

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXII.

STANFORD, KY., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1894.

NO. 69

MIDDLEBURG, CASEY COUNTY.

A shower of rain sufficient to stop the forest fires, fell here Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van gave an entertainment here Wednesday night, but we have not found anyone willing to acknowledge that he was present.

Our old friend J. H. McWhorter, since moving from his wilderness home in Lincoln county, has become an expert in the treatment of the diseases of cattle. Some weeks ago, Spears Fisher was grieving over the prospects of losing his $75 Jersey cow, when John Hansford as he is more familiarly known, happened along, and took the case in charge and soon had the cow on her legs. Spears was so delighted, that he went about publishing the wonderful cure, and now Mr. McWhorter is sent for, far and near by those having sick cattle, and is talking of going into the business for a livelihood.

It is only one week to the election and democrats should allow no grass to grow under their feet for the next few days. Everything is in good shape and this is going to be a democratic year in Casey if we continue to work. Casey should do herself proud by giving George Stone a handsome majority. He has more sense than Adams and Colson combined, besides he has never sought office at the hands of the people, while Adams has been in office almost ever, since he had an existence in the world, and if he ever did anything to commend himself to the people, his most intimate friends can not recall it. He should be given a rest, while a meritorious young man fills his place.

Rev. G. C. Smith has announced himself a candidate for justice of peace in this precinct, subject to the will of the people expressed at the polls on Nov. 5th. He became offended at the ruling of Squire J. A. Wall in a suit in which he (Smith) was defendant, and has sought this plan to get even with the Squire by dividing the democratic vote to allow Staton, the republican candidate to defeat Wall. Bro. Smith is a Baptist, and so are we, and therefore we feel at liberty to advise with him a little. If he will stick to the business for which he has spent much time and possibly means to prepare himself, parts of our county now destitute of the gospel, will probably be enlightened on the subject of the Bible.

This is the way the Glasgow Times talk: "Democrats! Hang your coats on the ground. Roll your shirt sleeves up to your Adam's apple. Go in. Go in to win. Bear yourselves like men. Force the fighting all along the line. Hustle! Hustle! Get a move on yourself and keep moving till November 7. There will be plenty of time to sleep then, and your dreams will, peradventure, be more pleasant if you do your whole duty as good democrats and good citizens now."

Mr. McKinley says we have not yet reached a point where protection is not needed. The Ohio treasury, under his administration, reached that point some time ago. Empty vaults need no protection.—St. Louis Republic.

News from all over the Third District shows that the democratic party has a splendid organization, and it is predicted that Mr. McElroy will defeat Dr. Hunter by at least 1,500 votes.

Colson gets the eagle, but Adams retains the 'coon. Now let Stone roll over and crow over 'em both.—Louisville Times.

Jon—Reading Job last Sunday we came across these familiar quotations:—

Miserable comforters are ye all.
I am escaped by the skin of my teeth.
When the morning stars sang together.

Oh that mine adversary had written a book.
The joy of the hypocrite is but for a moment.

Who is he that will strike hands with me?
Their tongue cleaved to the roof of their mouth.

Ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you.
Darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge.

Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble.

The Immigration Conference took practical steps in the selection of an executive committee, which elected Col. J. Stoddard Johnson as its executive head, with authority and the assurance of the means to establish a Bureau of Immigration and set systematically about the work of securing immigrants.

A Tennessee negro traded his mule for a razor.

"I would rather trust that medicine than any doctor I know of," says Mrs. Hattie Mann, of Chillicothe, Carter Co., Mo., in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough, Croup and Whooping Cough Remedy.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS

Of the Eleventh District of Kentucky.

Do not be misled or deceived by any false statements to the effect that I have withdrawn, or will withdraw from the race for Congress. I am on the track to be voted for on November 6th 1894, and I earnestly ask my friends to come out and vote for me. As you well know the rule ordering a primary election was illegal; only a partial primary election was held, and that in violation of law, an injunction, of which I was the victim, having been issued against it. No election was held in the counties in which I was strongest, and in all the counties of the District my friends generally refused to vote in obedience to the injunction. I want it well understood that I was in no way concerned in the injunction that was secured by Hon. John D. White. After the call for the primary was made and I had acquiesced in the action of the committee, I desired the primary to proceed, and I am confident that had such election been held I would have been declared the nominee. I paid in my proportionate share of the primary expenses, for which I received no benefit and am coolly informed by the Chairman of the District Committee that none of the money I paid in will be returned to me. What has become of the money that was to have been expended in the nine counties in which no primaries were held? My friends will see from this how I have been wronged and defrauded, and how my friends were prevented from expressing their choice as to their Representative in the 5th Congress. I am no holier. My republican cannot be questioned. No man publicly, or privately has charged me with being a liar; nor have I gone over the District making false statements about my opponents. I wear no man's collar, and if returned to Congress will serve you faithfully and fearlessly, and will not have to sell out to reimburse myself for money expended in the campaign trying to dupe the people. To the brave soldiers of my old regiment and to the gallant soldiers who served with me during the late war, I appeal for support and earnest work at the polls. I have never said that "the old soldier racket was played out," but have always given the ex-soldier my faithful service, and will continue to do so if I am favored with your suffrage. If you desire to vote for me, and the county nominees of the republican party, all you have to do is to stamp the cross (X) under the Eagle, and also in the square opposite my name under the 'coon.

Your attention is invited to section 1471, new statutes relative to the manner of voting which says: "Provided however, That if a cross mark (X) be made in the large square including the devise of such party, and a cross mark be also marked in the square after the name of one or more candidates of a different party or parties, the vote shall be counted for the candidate so marked and not for the candidates for the same office of the party so marked, but the vote shall be counted for the other candidates under such party name or designation."

D. G. Colson is not the nominee of the republican party, but is sailing under false colors, and is a humbug and an impostor. I was never charged as a common liar, as Colson was by Hon. John D. White before a large audience at Somerset, Ky., on the 23rd of Oct. Colson not only failed to resent this insult but said "I take it." When Mr. White replied "You have to take it." I dislike exceedingly to indulge in personalities, but as a mean, dirty campaign has been conducted against me, I have to fight the devil with fire. I have served you faithfully in the past and will continue to serve you, if I am re-elected. Thanking you for your past confidences and asking you to vote for me November 6, I am yours truly,

SILAS ADAMS.

OF A LOCAL NATURE.

An innovation at Manhattan Beach is the engagement of Culhane's Famous Minstrels and they are warmly received at each performance. Will E. Culhane is a clever artist and he has surrounded himself with some of the finest people in the minstrel profession. The programme is varied and made up of novel acts, entirely free from vulgarity and coarseness, and the costumes are costly and attractive. The management of Manhattan Beach is to be congratulated on securing such a clever company of artists.—Denver News, Aug. 1.

An Appeal to the Prohibitionists.

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.)

DEAR SIR:—I beg a small amount of space in your paper to make a short appeal to my prohibition brethren as to how we shall cast our votes in the county race.

Our party stands for good morals and good homes, if it stands for anything; and to-day we find ourselves without a single candidate in the county race, brought face to face with the burning question as to what party, if I may use that term, we will support. Shall the party that preaches itself for its high moral ideal itself with a party confessedly composed of nearly three-fourths negroes and some whisky men, men who have no homes worth caring for and no property to defend? Or shall we cast our suffrages with a party composed of men of our own race, who pay taxes and have something to live for? The white element in the republican party, if there is one, in this county, for it comes into notice occasionally, may be as wealthy and as intelligent, with as fine morals as the democrats, too, of the same number; but as every one knows a bucket full of clear water thrown into a muddy river will not clarify it; so a few moral, upright men can't make a party like the republican party in old Lincoln a clean and safe party to trust our homes and property to.

So fellow prohibitionists, let us cast our strength the 6th of November with the party of morals and men, and help to keep old Lincoln under the dominion of the men of our own race and thus sustain the democrats in their efforts to present pure, clean men who have in the past shown that they will see the laws enforced without fear or favor. As to the democratic nominees, I say vote for them and show both parties how easy we can beat a bad party, or how necessary it is for good men to be put up for office to be able to win. I have taken more space than I intended to, and I ask all who vote to come out and vote for the best ticket ever put up in Lincoln. AN OLD PROHIBITIONIST.

It is stated that Mrs. Cleveland has consented to christen the new steamer St. Louis, which is being finished at the Cramp shipyards in Philadelphia. The exercises occur Nov. 9, and a large party of St. Louisans will attend. The vessel will be presented with a magnificent dinner service, valued at nearly $20,000, paid for by popular subscription from the mercantile houses of St. Louis.

In excavating near Col. Cottrell's farm at Cumberland Gap, seven feet below the surface, workmen found a case containing 25 Enfield rifles. The case was stamped "John H. Morgan, 1863," indicating that the rifles had been buried there 31 years ago by the famous Southern officer. They are in a perfect state of preservation, and are not even rusted.

There died in Washington last week a man who, in his lifetime, it is said, had handled more money than any other person in the world. He was William Barnes a clerk in the Treasurer's office. In one day $60,000,000 in money had passed through his hands.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first symptoms of true croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the cough has developed it will prevent the attack.

The office of the Building and Loan Association, in charge of Judge Hemphill, secretary, has been moved into Norris' furniture store.

Another patent medicine troupe struck the town Saturday. The "fakir" that was here a short time ago got all the money the jays had, so trade was pretty dull.

Meers J. D. Wear and J. M. Alverson, of Diadem Lodge No. 81, Stanford, came over Friday night and witnessed some entertaining antics of the local K. P. goat. This goat will repeat the same two performances next Friday evening.

We can not see how a person who never washes his feet can have the gall to attend church. On a certain night, at a certain church in Lancaster, some one turned the stomachs of the congregation on one entire side of the house of worship. This fellow may have a home in Heaven, but we venture to say he will have to mend his ways before he can enter the Pearly Gates.

The Lancaster Record says that the Rev. George W. Yancey is a physical and mental wreck. His trip to Europe failed to restore him and his useful life work appears to be ended.

Dr. C. C. Brown reports a church in Georgia as writing to its district association as follows: "By baptism, none; by letter, none; no Sunday school; for minutes, nothing. Dear brethren, pray for us, that we may hold out faithful to the end."

Large crowds assemble at each service to hear Eld. W. E. Crabtree's earnest and eloquent appeals for laborers in the Master's vineyard and a number have rewarded his efforts by enlisting. Sunday night every available space of the church was occupied by eager listeners and they were delighted with one of the best discourses of the series. Mr. Crabtree has learned the beauty of brevity and his sermons never exceed 30 minutes. He does not waste time in tedious introductory remarks but goes at once to the heart of the subject and discusses it with great power and effectiveness. The meeting will continue until further notice.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

R CONGRESS.....JAS. B. MCCREARY
 For County Judge.....JAS. WALKER GIVENS
 Clerk.....G. R. COOPER
 Attorney.....J. R. PANTON
 Sheriff.....T. D. NEWLAND
 Assessor.....E. D. KENNEDY
 Jailor.....G. W. DEBORD

In some of the counties prohibitionist Demaree failed to comply with the law with reference to getting his name on the ballots and of course it might have been left off. In Madison the clerk had decided that he could not put it on, and the republicans thereupon began to make capital out of the so-called democratic trick. The democratic committee, to show that there was no desire to treat the prohibitionists unfairly, petitioned the clerk of Madison to put Demaree's name on the ballots and he agreed to do so, provided the candidates were willing. Gov. McCreary promptly agreed but at last accounts Dr. Roberts was as silent on the subject as he has been on the issues of this campaign. We trust our prohibition friends will make a note of this and not permit themselves to be bamboozled by the false pretenses and the fox game the republicans would play on them.

Gov. McCreary is one of the most efficient men in Congress. His record of public service is surpassed by no member of the Kentucky delegation and his standing in Washington is without reproach. He is a capable man, a useful man and a conservative man. His constituents, be he democrat, republican or prohibitionist, white or black, have never called on him in vain. He is always ready to serve them and the high estimate in which he is held by law makers and law enforcers makes him peculiarly effective in doing so. Can this district afford to retire such a man for one of Dr. Roberts callous and inexperienced? We think not and we confidently believe it will not. Democrats, show your colors and manifest your appreciation of merit by voting for Gov. McCreary and our full ticket.

The card of Hon. John D. White withdrawing from the Congressional race in the 11th is full of words with the bark on them. He charges Colson, Col. Ed Parker and others with forgery, the candidate with lying and Chairman Hill with base duplicity and the use of his position to further the interests of his favorite candidate. The whole ship's crew is canistered fore and aft and after using up three columns of the London Echo in criminating the partisans of Colson, the jawbreaker winds up with an appeal to his friends to vote for Col. Adams and thus defy bull-dozers, boodle and corruption.

There he liars and liars, but the one at Middleboro takes the cake. He was not content with discovering a stand of arms left in the caves by Morgan's men, but must give color to the improbability of the whole story by alleging the find of a whole masked battery, cannons and all. The further statement that three barrels of 30-odd year old whiskey were also found laid away shows how easily a liar can overreach himself and give the whole thing away.

The Courier Journal of yesterday contained reports from all the Congressional districts in Kentucky, which show that things are in pretty good shape and that there is nothing to justify the big boasts of the republicans. They are making their fight in the 3d, 5th, 7th and 9th districts, but with little prospect of success anywhere, even in the 11th, if Colson stays on the track, which he is likely to do despite the efforts of the republican campaign committee.

BRER DEMAREE has sold his Madison county farm and will move to Louisville to engage more extensively in prohibition work. "If his party should fail to send him to Congress." In this case that "F" is not a long crooked letter. The prohibitionists would not send Brer Demaree to Congress if they could. They have more respect for themselves than that, though they will vote for him, when they know he hasn't the ghost of a show.

More importance than usual hinges on the Congressional races this year. The next House will count the vote for president and if none of the candidates should receive a majority, it will itself elect a president. The loss of one member may be the loss of the government. Let the democrats of this district see that Gov. McCreary goes in by increased majority.

The Louisville Times speaks of the raging Bull of Bashan as John Denny. This is a serious mistake. It is Dennis Denny. The democrats of the 7th district will teach him a lesson on the 6th for his impudence in trying to make them prove traitors to their principles and their party.

JUDGE JEWELL decides that the law closing barber shops is unconstitutional. He evidently thinks with most of us that going unshaven on Sunday is about as much hell as politics.

Just one week remains before the issue of this campaign are decided by the ballots and it behooves democrats to be up and doing. This is no time for doubts or dallying. More than at any time are Joe Blackburn's words applicable now: "He who dallies is a dastard, and he who doubts is damned." Don't for an imaginary grievance desert the party of honor and principle to cast your lot with ignorance and venality, but go to the polls and mark your ballot for the full democratic ticket just as you would do, if the old order of voting prevailed. If you voted in the primary, you are honor bound to support the nominees and if you are an honest man you will fulfill every obligation. Don't vote to turn the county over to an irresponsible pettifogger and his negro dupes, but be true to party and principle by putting your cross under the rooster.

As will be seen by a card in another column of this issue, Col. Silas Adams is in the race for Congress to stay till the last day in the evening. There is no earthly chance for an agreement between him and Colson, and the war is on to the end. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. George Stone and democracy seem in the fairest way to get the benefit.

—On account of the chilly rain Friday it was thought best to declare the race off and as a consequence the first meeting of the Louisville Fair and Driving Association was cut a little short. The races on the three days previous were good, however, and the meeting was a success, both financially and otherwise.

—Extensive improvements will be made on the track and grounds and next year the trots will be held on a much larger scale.

Sterling, as on a certain street in this city, which is only one square long, there are 26 marriageable girls and not a Methodist minister to be found.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

SHEEP BARN.

The illustration shows its front elevation and ground plan.

The accompanying plan of a sheep barn is one which has been found very useful in the northwest for a flock of about 500 ewes when crowded to its fullest capacity, though more conveniently accommodating 250 to 350 during the lambing season, for which it was especially designed, and with slight modification made to answer for a shearing barn and storing loft later in the season.

A building 20 by 26 feet on the ground (Fig. 1) and posts 10 feet high formed the center, from which in three directions went out one story wings, two of them 50 by 26 feet and one 65 by 20 feet, making an aggregate floor space of about 4,400 feet. The center was substantially built, as the second story was used for storing feed in winter and spring and for the wool clip between shearing and shipping. Oak posts 8 inches square were set upon flat stones, imbedded so as to bring the upper surface 3 inches above ground. Lower story, 8 feet, the second story being laid with dressed and matched flooring, so as to allow no hayseed or other trash to sift through and to be more easily cleaned for the reception of wool. Single roof, sides boarded upright and stripped, windows below and above for ventilation. Posts for the wings 6 feet high and set in the ground a foot to give strength. Roof to wings made of stock boards 16 feet long, laid 2 inches apart and battened with fencing the proper length. Sides boarded upright and stock boards driven close together, but not stripped. A row of posts down the center of each wing supported the roof and served to strengthen partitions below. A fair idea of the divisions and arrangements for handling sheep may be had from Fig. 2.

FIG. 1—SHEEP BARN, FRONT VIEW.

Entire building floored with clay, well packed down. The center was used for various purposes, though its principal value was as a catching pen. Sheep were driven in from the yard in front, and after sorting turned into two or more of the apartments or through them into the other yards. Several advantages are noted in handling sheep in a pen thus under cover. It can be done in wet or cold weather as well as at other times. Sheep are much quieter, seeming to realize that there is no chance for escape. Very little jumping or struggling is indulged in. When the building was crowded, this center room was littered and used during the night to relieve the other apartments. Every morning and at intervals during the day ewes that had dropped lambs were carefully removed from the larger apartments (B) and placed in the small pens (C), not more than five or six being allowed together until the lambs were a day or more old. When these small pens were full, the sheep from two of them were driven together into one of the larger pens (D). By the time these latter were full the main flock had been reduced, so as to allow the occupancy of one of the larger apartments by the animals from three or four of the pens (D). The lambs in this apartment were then old enough to be allowed to run outside when the weather was pleasant, only being housed at night.

The gates to the smaller pens were made so as to completely close the alley into which they swung, so that the sheep could go nowhere else than into the pen where it was wanted. In all the pens occupied with ewes with lambs too young to be turned outside tubs of water were kept standing and the racks always full of hay.

In the second story of the center building a room 10 feet square was partitioned off and supplied with a stove and lounge for the use of the shepherd, who only left the building for his meals. Here was kept constantly warm a kettle of milk for feeding such lambs as were not sufficiently supplied by their mothers and a good fire to warm up those that became chilled.

At shearing time the entire building was cleaned out. A shearing floor made of matched flooring in sections 4 feet wide, held together by battens on the under side, much after the fashion of an ordinary barn door, was laid in the center room and the fleeces as fast as tied through an opening into the second story, where they were properly ricked up to await the advent of the buyer or the time for sacking. The two small pens next to this room were used for holding sheep to be sheared, which as fast as finished were turned through one of the wings into the yards outside.—Montreal Herald.

The battle is on hot between advocates of the Clydesdale and Percheron horses. Why does not some breeder make a special cross between the two and keep it up for about four equine generations and see what the result will be? It is said we are to have a special American carriage horse. Why not an American draft horse too?

Mr. Dudderar escaped unhurt, but his companion suffered a fracture of the hip and was otherwise hurt. Dr. Cook was sent for and at last accounts the young lady was doing as well as could be expected.

SPEAKING.—To-night, Tuesday, at 7 at the court-house, M. B. McGee, the negro orator, who is chairman of the campaign committee of the National Negro Democratic Association, will address the colored people on the issues of the day. He has invited George W. Gentry or any other colored republican to be present and discuss with him, but it remains to be seen whether the challenge will be accepted or not.

MEETINGS of the colored people are being held nightly all over the county, which are addressed by white fly-by-night orators, who tell every kind of a lie to the ignorant and superstitious to keep them in line. At these meetings doorkeepers are stationed and whisky on the breath is the pass right. If it is not there a big drink is thrown down the applicant for admission and loaded with whisky, the meetings are of a vociferous nature.

COUNTY COURT has ceased to be the crowd drawing card it used to be when it came twice a year and the docket contained murder cases galore. Only those who are especially interested attend now and consequently the crowds in town do not exceed very much the every day run. A number of minor cases have been disposed of at this term in addition to the ones mentioned below.

The suit of S. D. Myers against S. P. Douglas occupied the court from Thursday till Saturday. It was for a note alleged to have been given by Mr. Douglas in full of a settlement made between the brothers-in-law, and is for $450 with interest from Dec. 31, 1870. The note was in the handwriting of Mr. E. B. Caldwell, Sr., and Douglas' cross mark only was signed. Mr. Douglas knew nothing of the note and Mr. Caldwell testified that he had been on a debauch when he signed it. After arguments by Messrs. Welch and Warren for the defendant and Hill & McRoberts for the plaintiff, the jury found for the defendant. The note would have been barred by limitation on the last of January next.

The grand jury continues to find indictments. The felonious men are catching it in the neck and several parties who were dismissed by the examining court have been indicted for the offenses charged: John Centres for the murder of Mr. Moutray; Isom Hargraves for rape and Ike Logan for shooting at W. E. Amon. A number of indictments has also been found for gaming.

Wm. Plummer, a white man, who has been in jail since last summer on a charge of attempted rape upon Susie Baker, a little girl of six years of age, was tried Saturday. A very damaging case was made out against him, but some of the witnesses' characters were assailed with effect, and the result was a hung jury, seven for acquittal and five for 20 years.

The case of Isaac Hamilton against T. J. Higgins and other engineers was called Saturday and a jury obtained.

As there are no lawyers for the plaintiff, Messrs. Hill & McRoberts, and four for the defendants, Messrs. R. C. Warren, W. G. Welch, J. B. Paxton and J. S. Owsley, Jr., there is nothing when this case will get to the jury.

The grand jury has indicted T. L. Shelton and P. W. Green each for selling whisky at Rowland, although they are licensed to do so. It is for the purpose of testing the act under which they were granted license.

W. E. PARKINS, the wide awake Crab Orchard merchant, has bought out the assignee's stock of Mrs. D. G. Slaughter & Son at that place and will begin to dispose of it at very low figures Nov. 2 See ad. on our first page.

JOHN, W. H. MILLER and Harvey Helm went out Sunday to do some measuring on the place that Hale killed Pennington, but were forced to leave by the owner, who though engaged in shucking corn, objected to his land being "surveyed" on Sunday.

Rev. GEORGE O. BARNES, Mrs. Barnes and Miss Marie Barnes arrived yesterday and began a week's meeting at the court-house. All of them are looking first-rate. The sweet gospel of "God is Love and Nothing Else" they preach beams in their countenances and a feast of fervent oratory and touching song is promised. The troupe is quartered at Col. and Mrs. W. G. Welch's.

For the first time for a long time rain fell Friday and though it was far insufficient, it did great good. It came again yesterday and at this writing, 4 p. m., is falling like we are to have a ground soaker, though the signal service says it will be fair, cooler to-morrow.

P. S.—At this later writing, 5 p. m., it looks like the rain chances have gone glimmering.

Mr. JOHN BRIGHT played a practical joke on a smart Danville man the other day. He walked into Mr. S. H. Shanks' store, where Mr. Bright and others were sitting and asked in a saucy kind of a way if he could get a drink of water in town, intending to be funny at the expense of our water works. Mr. Bright saw his chance and worked it. "Yes," said he, "we have some back here, but it's getting mighty low. You'll have to turn the faucet of the hydrant very quickly to make the water come at all." The Danville man followed instructions and the result was the water shot the dipper out of his hand and splashing to the ceiling came down in a torrent, upon the head and shoulders of the greeny, who went home a wiser, but a wetter man. Can't the Advocate teach its imitators some gumption.

The new road law gives the fiscal court of each county general charge and supervision of the public roads and bridges therein and provides that they shall be maintained by taxation or by hands allotted to work thereon, in its discretion. All able bodied citizens between 18 and 50 years of age, except licensed preachers and citizens of incorporated towns, may be required to work on the roads six days in a year, a day to be reckoned at eight hours. For this work the court can allow a reasonable compensation, which amount shall go towards the payment of taxes, the residue being paid in money to the person so working. This law was passed by a democratic Legislature and a democratic fiscal court will give the people the benefit of its provisions. The democratic nominee for judge has for years been in favor of paying people to work on roads and the nominees for magistrate are likewise in favor of it.

Boss Davison is trying to make capital by telling the poorer people that if he and his henchmen are elected, they will pay them $1 a day for working the roads and that the democrats will not. Brand this as most of their statements as a lie. The democratic fiscal court will see that every man who works the road is amply remunerated.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Mr. Alfred Petrey and Miss Malinda Powers were married at Ottenheim Sunday.

—J. M. Williams, a widower of 30, and Miss Doshia Aker, just 17, were married at J. W. Aker's Sunday.

—Middleborough has just had a rather sensational elopement. Viola Newman, a 14-year-old school girl, ran away and married J. M. Garrough. The girl was in school reciting her geography lesson when her sweetheart called for her.

—The marriage of a very dear cousin of the editor is announced: Miss Kane Morton Smith, of Louisa, Va., to Mr. Alep Dowell, of Macon, Ga., where the happy couple will make their home. May their sweetest hopes of conjugal felicity be more than realized.

—Truly a mockery of marriage is that between young Nicholas, of Russia, and Princess Alix—a man who surrenders his love in order to form such a union, a woman who surrenders her religion. And all for a throne that is but a mausoleum, and for a destiny that is simply doom.—Courier-Journal.

—The position of society editor of the Lexington Leader seems to be the open sesame to matrimony. Miss Daisy Fitzhugh held it for a while and she married. Then her sister, Miss Brockenbrough Fitzhugh, took charge and now she is to be married. The event will occur Nov. 17 and the happy man is Mr. Harwell Smith, of St. Louis.

—The society editor of the Lexington Leader, who can vouch for its infallibility, as she is to be married very soon says to the girls: If you would be sure of a proposal within a month, secure the little bow that fastens the lining in an admirer's hat and wear it—in your shoe. 'Tis said that the most wavering lover, the one who can't quite make up his mind to ask that most important question, will yield at once to this most potent charm, and even one who hasn't thought of such a thing will also fall an unresisting victim.

—Miss Frankie Farra's was a chrysanthemum wedding, and the gorgeous blossoms, golden, white and purple, peeped out from amid the thicket of palms, which stood on the rostrum and waved their heads from their places in the vases whenever a breeze stole in. Misses Jennie and Lily Lyne were among the bridesmaids. All wore gowns of cloth of a delicate mode color trimmed with yellow chiffon. Their large Leghorn hats were wreathed in yellow chrysanthemums, and they carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bride was all in white. Her dress was of white cloth, her wide brimmed hat was finest white, and the chrysanthemums she carried were white.
